

Technical Program Manager

EINDHOVEN

Are you an experienced Program Manager with a technical background and looking for a new challenge?

We have an exclusive assignment for our client for a Technical Product Manager role at the Eindhoven Headquarters, The Netherlands. Our client is a leader in the developing and global supply of technology-rich, liquid dispensing products, and is the preferred supplier of many of the top brands in home and garden care, food, beverage and other packaged goods. Are you a natural leader, with technical knowledge and are you open to an international role? Please check the job offer below.

De functie

The Technical Program Manager is the first point of contact between the operational organization and Research & Innovation for technical support to the product portfolio.

In addition, you will be responsible for:

- Managing the product portfolio;
- Ensuring that the product meets the market and customer needs and standards;
- Translating business requirements into technical requirements;
- Managing all technical product documentation;
- Coordinating product introductions together with marketing, sales and development.

You will work together with the Commercial Program Manager to make sure the company will stay ahead of the competition. In support of product development you analyse and assess competitive products and emerging (disruptive) technologies.

De kandidaat

To be eligible for this position, you at least meet the requirements below.

- Technical background, strong affinity with engineering;
- Bachelor/Master level;
- Several years of experience in a role as Technical Program Manager;
- Experience in developing or producing multi-part assembled (plastic) products;
- Experience with CAD/PDM software;
- Experience in providing technical training and advice to internal and external customers;
- Ability to coordinate change requests;
- Ability to manage complexity;
- Ability to work in a multidisciplinary and project-based manner.

You are driven and have a desire to develop individuals and help them achieve their personal and professional goals whilst ensuring company success. You have excellent communication skills and have a very high level of written and spoken communication skills in Chinese and English.

Wij bieden

An internationally-oriented job with a lot of responsibilities. You will become part of an organization that is continuously developing techniques and is one of the market leaders in liquid dispensing products. You will be part of a driven multidisciplinary team that is passionate about developing innovative dispense technologies and pushing boundaries of what is possible.
